Foolish Political Slander

One of the stereotyped charges against the Administration, is "that its leaders do not desire that the war should be closed, but wish to protract it for political purposes" We do not know what is the pretended ground of this charge, but it is so utterly absurd that sensible opponents ought to be ashamed to circulate it, for it is not only for the interest of the Administration to end the war as soon as its object is accomplished, but it is an imperative necessity that this should be done If its members prolong it but a single hour beyond what the safety of the nation demands, they will be discarded with public contempt, and hurled from power forever They have every possible inducement to make the war short and decisive Ambition, even without regard to patriotism, would drive them to it The wish to be approved by the present generation, and to stand honorably before posterity, must force them onward If by their prompt exertions, the conflict is crowned by a triumphant restoration of the Union, what a lofty position would they fill in the eyes of all mankind! But if on the contrary, they suffer it to drag along ineffectively, leaving it as a heritage to their successors, they would be compelled to bear a large share of the disgrace of failure with none of the honors of success. The con[illegible] ce of the war unnecessarily and for [illegible] tical purposes, when every possible motive [illegible] ates to urge them to its early conclusion, would prove them to be worse than knaves—[illegible] would show them to be greater fools than [illegible] before filled public stations, and no man [illegible] they are so utterly careless of their reputation, and chances for future pro[illegible] and honor, as to be willing to risk all [illegible] se in a mad and reckless speculation [illegible] se who wish to oppose them effectively [illegible] better and some more probable cause of [illegible] me—one not so utterly foolish as this, [illegible] ich carries its own absurdity on its face.

FROM PRIEST'S RAPIDS — A report is in circulation, said to have been brought by Indians, that five miners have been recently killed by Spaniards near the Rapids The object was plunder, and the murderers stole a large sum of money

Visit to the Oil Regions

One who closely examines a modern map of the State of Pennsylvania will find a small creek which takes its rise in the northern part of Crawford county in the northwestern part of the State and flows in a tortuous southerly direction through the eastern part of the county, thence through the central part of Venango county where it empties into the Allegheny river at a place designated on the map as "Oil City" This place four years ago consisted of two or three log or public houses the proprietors of which gained a precarious subsistence from the number of lumbermen who usually made this point a stopping place in their transit with lumber rafts down the Allegheny river to Pittsburg and Cincinnati

It is now however a city containing upward of 3 000 inhabitants, the dwellings, stores and hotels being located in a single narrow street situate between the Allegheny river and a high precipitous ridge which bounds the city on the south there being barely room enough between the ridge and the river for the street in question It derives its present importance from the fact that it is the main point or outlet from which is shipped, by means of flat boats and other contrivances nearly all the rock oil which finds its way to Pittsburg and the Western cities and its population is now made up of traders, oil speculators, adventurers, boatmen teamsters and all the other odds and ends which are naturally drawn to a place where excitement runs high and fortunes are made by a lucky click of the drill The creek from its source may be fifty miles in length but the oil district proper lies mainly between the village and Titusville in the southern part of Crawford county following the creek to its mouth, a distance of about twenty miles

HOW PETROLEUM WAS DISCOVERED

Rock oil has been a product of Oil creek in limited quantities, for many years but it is only recently that it has obtained commercial value or been developed in quantities sufficient to warrant the investment of labor and capital Many years ago it was noticed that the surface of the creek at certain points when the water was at a low stage would be covered with a fluid resembling oil and which would gather in considerable quantities in still water places formed by eddies and obstructions and which was frequently gathered by the settlers and Indians by means of heavy woolen blankets thrown upon the surface which would absorb the oil, which on being wrung out would separate itself from the water and float on the top By this process the oil was collected put into bottles, and sold by druggists under the name of Seneca oil It was used to cure bruises and sprains and was particularly recommended for all bruises, strains and other external injuries to which the equine species are subject

It was a remedy greatly in vogue among the Indians and may now be found in many apothecary shops throughout the country Recently it has been found by our army surgeons to be the most effectual remedy yet discovered in purifying and keeping in a healthy state semi suppurating gun shot wounds Some three or four years ago a man named Drake commenced digging or drilling a well near the margin of the creek, a mile or two below the village of Titusville, announcing in advance that rock oil would be found, if he could drill far enough to reach it. He worked patiently for months drilling into what seemed a bed of solid rock, apparently with no more prospect of finding oil than one would have if he attempted to bore through the Palisades

He was generally regarded by the inhabitants as a monomaniac upon the subject But he toiled on day after day week after week and month after month, receiving in the meantime some aid from persons in Boston to prosecute his labors. At last his highest hopes met with fruition the patient and laborious drill struck the right spot, and forth gushed a torrent of oil, which continued to flow, of its own accord, for many months Its commercial value soon became apparent In its crude state it was so volatile and so highly charged with inflammable gas that it was dangerous and explosive but it was soon found that it could be refined by distillation, the naptha or benzoin could be taken off, leaving pure petroleum which, as the reader knows, gives forth a clear, brilliant light, is not explosive, and, as to cheapness supplants every thing it has yet encountered Besides, the great rebellion has cut off our supplies of turpentine from the Old North State and benzoin which at first was regarded as worthless, and thousands of barrels were suffered to go to waste, is now used by the house painter as a tolerable substitute for all inside work The benzoin alone now pays for all the labor and expense attending the rectification of the crude oil

THE APPEARANCE OF THE COUNTRY WHERE THE OIL IS FOUND AND THE MANNER OF OBTAINING IT

If you start from the mouth of Oil creek and follow the stream to Titusville you will find a uniformity in the appearance of the oil region which will at once strike you as singular in the extreme Nearly all the way the creek runs through a gorge or narrow valley, hemmed in on either side by ranges of high and rocky hills, almost reaching the hight of mountains and covered the most part with scrub oak and other light timber, the pine having long ago been cut and made into lumber The valley in the main, will not average over thirty rods in width and it is on and along this narrow strip, of both sides of the creek that the oil wells are located From the mouth of the creek to the village of Titusville it is safe to say that at least fifteen hundred wells have been opened, prospected or are in process of being opened Every well has erected over it a derrick. Looking up or down the valley the eye meets with derricks on every hand crowded over wells flowing pumping or dry For more than fifteen miles this spectacle is presented, and the eye wearies in looking over the forest of derricks The land itself is about as poor for agricultural purposes as anything that can be found in the State, and prior to the oil discovery might all have been purchased for twenty shillings per acre the purchaser paying a big price at that The oil is mostly reached by drilling through various strata of solid rock which is now performed by portable steam power although at first hand and horse power only were brought into requisition

After digging through the surface earth varying in thickness from ten to twenty five feet, you strike a layer of slate of an average thickness of one hundred and eighty feet. After this layer is drilled you reach what is termed by the drillers the first sandstone, which has a thickness ranging from twenty five to thirty feet The driller then reaches a layer of soft rock, called soapstone which is generally one hundred and often one hundred and twenty five feet in thickness This mastered, the second sand stone makes its appearance, having an average thickness of twenty five feet. A layer of sand rock a species of soft rock next presents itself and this usually has a depth of one hundred and fifty feet, when you strike what is called the third sandstone formation, when the patient miner expects to find a copious flow of oil This layer of rock is on an average twenty five feet in thickness and is drilled into and through with the expectation of striking a subterranean fissure or chamber from which, owing to the pressure of the confined gas generated by the oil, will spout up of its own accord and thus produce a fortune for the lucky discoverer Although good oil wells have been reached by drilling two hundred and fifty feet, and sometimes much less, it has been found that this depth is entirely untrustworthy, and the third sand stone at a depth of nearly if not quite [illegible] hundred feet, must generally be reached before finding a good and payable yield of oil

THE SUPPLY OF OIL

It is of course difficult to determine with accuracy the present per diem yield of oil Some days the flowing wells give forth a greater quantity than on others and it is also found that there is a gradual subsidence of the flow after a run of some months The localities of the celebrated wells are designated by the names of the original farm owners Thus we have wells on "Blood farm" "the McClintock farm" "the Tarr farm" "the Story farm," etc etc, the original owners leasing well plots usually about ten rods square and taking their rental in a certain percentage of the oil obtained, usually one half the yield

Some of these farms have located up in them from one to two hundred wells some wells yielding five seven and ten hundred barrels per day and others yielding all the way down to a single barrel There is a flowing well on the Story farm which now yields on an average one thousand barrels per day and that has been going on for several months and the yield has as yet but slightly diminished.

Oil is now worth in its crude state about six dollars per barrel, and it is easy to perceive the immense increase which the land owner and the lucky lessee is in daily receipt of from this well alone

I was told that the owner of an eighth interest in a single flowing well had recently been offered $110 000 for his quit claim which he declined to take Some wells now yield $5 000 worth of oil every twenty four hours, and when you take this almost fabulous statement into consideration it is not a wonder that everybody in the oil region has oil on the brain and talks, thinks and dreams of nothing but oil flowing wells and immense piles of greenbacks I asked several gentlemen who have been operators since the excitement commenced what they regard as the present per diem yield of all the wells on the creek and I received a general answer [illegible] less than 10 000 barrels [illegible] every twenty four hours It must not be supposed however that all the wells yield an income sometimes the labor of month and months ends in hopeless disappointment, and sometimes the yield fails to cover the expenses But with all the drawbacks rock oil in all its conditions is a new element of immense wealth [illegible] many industrial [illegible] will [illegible] benefit to the country The [illegible] of the driller the barrel manufacturer, the teamster the boatman and the many others [illegible] are in this mine of [illegible] blessing

There are many other interesting questions connected with the oil region and many incidents and oil stories which I shall reserve for another communication From what is the oil produced? Is the supply inexhaustible? The refining process and freshet and the mode of reaching market are items which for the present must be left untouched —Cor of the N Y Tribune

EASTERN NEWS.

The following additional Eastern news is from the Sacramento Union

HEADQUARTERS WEST VIRGINIA January 26 —Large [illegible] of deserters are coming [illegible] our lines All [illegible] reported at [illegible] the present great scarcity among the rebels

Col [illegible] reports having news of an important character, relating to the good workings of the President's amnesty proclamation among the rebels in arms and those who have heretofore been sympathizers [illegible] who are not now in the army [illegible] Davis conscription has given rise to this news Everything looks cheering in this department

The Nashville Union referring to the threatened attack on Knoxville says we speak from thorough knowledge of the situation We know that Foster is sufficiently able to repel any forces the rebels may bring against him

From Chattanooga, the [illegible] has news of the completion of the railroad The weather will render campaigning feasible within a brief period

LEAVENWORTH January 27 —The troops at Fort Smith are reported to be on half rations owing to the defective system of supply Forage also is very scarce

NEW YORK January 28 —The New York Herald's Army of the Potomac correspondent says he had a long interview to day with an officer high in rank in the army who said he had opportunities of frequent conversations with deserters and he believes there is a general distrust of the fidelity of rebel pickets, that soldiers in Lee's army will grasp at the earliest possible period the olive branch of peace held out to them by the amnesty proclamation that there is actual destitution in the rebel army that the supply [illegible] is extremely short and with the greatest difficulty enough reaches the army to make even the small daily allowance that is furnished that the supply of forage is so short that cavalry horses are cared for very tenderly and nearly all picketing is done by infantry, the object being to keep their horses in condition for service when the spring campaign opens

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, January 27 —It was two Mississippi regiments that opened the ball on Saturday last by attempting to fight their way out of the rebel lines for the purpose of taking the oath of allegiance. Unfortunately they did not succeed though they made a brilliant attack upon the troops that were ordered to intercept their progress It is expected that full information will reach here shortly by which some idea may be formed of the losses

From twenty five to forty deserters come into the picket lines of the Second Corps daily, and as many to the Third Corps notwithstanding four skirmishing lines have been thrown out by the rebels to prevent desertions

A special to the New York Times, dated Washington, Jan 7th says A letter from a general officer at Knoxville received here says the rebels are gathering together all the cavalry preparatory to a grand raid through Tennessee and Kentucky to get horses and supplies If they are unsuccessful in Kentucky the writer says they may be tempted to cross the Ohio

Gen Halleck having replied in the negative to Secretary Chase's inquiry as to whether there would be danger of supplies reaching the rebels if trade restrictions were removed from the States of Kentucky and Missouri Chase has sanctioned the regulation opening those States to unrestricted commercial enterprise The same policy will soon be followed in Delaware and Maryland

CINCINNATI Jan 28th —A Chattanooga dispatch says Several unimportant cavalry raids have been made recently to cover rebel movements Refugees who left Knoxville January 23d report skirmishing between Longstreet's cavalry and ours [illegible]

Gov Johnson issued a proclamation for the election of county officers in counties under the Union flag Disloyal persons are not permitted to vote, and a very rigid oath is prescribed

It is reported that John Morgan with seven regiments of cavalry will make a raid in Kentucky and through the gaps of the east part of the State

CHICAGO Jan 28 —A Chattanooga dispatch says Johnson's army had fallen back from Dalton Col Burke of the Tenth Ohio with a flag of truce went out forty five miles but could find no enemy. He had sent in for provisions and followed on The rebel advance pickets are near Kingston forty miles south of Dalton probably to cover their retreat to Mobile, where Chatham's Division went last Monday, January 25th

NASHVILLE January 27 —Later information from Gen Dodge at Pulaski (Tenn) under date of January 26th says the enemy crossed the Tennessee river last night, and attacked Athens this morning They were defeated and are now trying to get back The troops at Athens had mostly gone to Florence to attack Johnson's forces crossing there and Col. Harrison with six hundred rebels and two pieces of artillery, took advantage of their absence The rebels were badly defeated

Still later advices are that Dodge badly whipped Johnston at Florence. In all probability the raid is at an end

Collector James has determined to place permanent inspectors on board all steamships running between this port and Victoria, (V I), to prevent smuggling. There seems much reason for the belief that extensive frauds have been committed.

The libel suit commenced by Hathaway & Co against the Aquila for wharfage, has been withdrawn on payment of $2 000.

Ship [illegible] for Boston, carries a cargo valued at $90 000 including 6,625 sacks copper ore

Telegrams from Visalia give glowing accounts of new mines in Cleopatra district The Cleopatra lead is 30 feet wide and assays $300 per ton

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28 —The jury on the second trial of Captain Batchelder for killing Perkins at the Farralone Islands after being out all night and up to noon to-day came in with a verdict of manslaughter, urgently recommending the prisoner to the mercy of the Court There will probably be an effort for another trial

They commenced discharging the Aquila to day and the work proceeds steadily and successfully There are three divers employed, and each one remains under water four hours A large lighter load of iron plates is already recovered All the wood work is spoiled but can be readily replaced

The United States Marshal to day seized 150 boxes less 19 cases Manilla cigars and other merchandise, imported by brig Eberhardt from Foo Chow for violation of revenue laws A lot of boots and shoes imported from Paris by steamship Constitution was also seized.

IMPORTANT TO LAND CLAIMANTS —We are informed by Mr. Starkweather Register of the Land Office, Oregon City, that a considerable portion of the land claims in Oregon do not conform to legal subdivisions and consequently no patent will be issued to such claimants until their claims are amended and made to conform to the requirements of the law whether they are certificated or not

These illegalities as explained to us by Mr Starkweather, are general all over the State and Washington Territory and will involve great difficulties if attempted to be changed into legal form Mr S thinks that a fair representation of these difficulties to Congress by the citizens of Oregon and Washington Territory will secure an act of relief, and prevent a vast amount of trouble to the people interested

The informality most general is a square forty lying on both sides of a section line, and a long forty, one eighth mile wide and a half mile long neither of which is admissible It is easy to see that a change of the lines at this time would involve universal embarrassment and considerable loss of land The attention of those concerned is called to the necessity of petitioning Congress immediately for a law legalizing such claims as they have been made —Statesman

SHOOTING AFFAIR —A difficulty occurred at Hawley's stage station at the entrance of Pass Creek canon 27 miles south of this place, on Sunday morning last, in which Frederick Sanders, the hostler of the Stage Company there was very severely if not dangerously shot—first in the left arm with a large rifle ball which so shattered the bone from the elbow to the shoulder, that amputation was necessary and again with buckshot from a shot gun in the back just above the waist on the right side Two or three versions of the affair have reached us—all proceeding from the parties to the shooting, and all quite different from one another It appears that the hostler found some difficulty in his sleeping apartment in Hawley's house and on Saturday night took his blankets to the stable and slept there While taking breakfast next morning at a neighboring house his blankets were taken back to Hawley's On his return he went to the house to get them He was refused entrance He attempted to force his way in, when Mrs Hawley attempted to shoot him with a shot gun, the caps twice snapped, and she threw it away, and called upon a man employed about the house named William Hanley, to take the rifle and shoot Hanley did as he was ordered and gave Sanders the wound in the arm Mrs Hawley's son, a lad of about twelve years had picked up the shot gun, and was also ordered by his mother to shoot the running man The boy shot and hit him in the back Sanders then proceeded to the house of Mr C Boren where he was properly cared for and a surgeon sent for (Dr R F Foley) amputated the arm dressed his other wounds, and gave him such other assistance as was required At last accounts Sanders was getting on favorably, with a strong chance of recovery An examination into the affair was had on Thursday before a Justice of the Peace and the parties to the shooting were discharged from custody Their stories are dissimilar and conflicting and utterly at variance with the deposition of Sanders Unquestionably the case ought to be more thoroughly investigated by the next grand jury.—[illegible] City Review Feb. 6.

H J WALDRON, Esq, Postmaster at the Dalles, paid us a visit last evening on his way to Salem Mr Waldron informs us that considerable apprehension was felt, when he left, for the safety of the Canyon City express, which was due on Saturday, as it was known the Indians were again very troublesome on that route, and had already committed a series of depredations, in the vicinity of the outrages of last summer One ranch had been destroyed, and a large amount of flour &c, left there on storage, was taken away A band of the Warm Spring Indians are believed to have been the perpetrators of the deed. There has been a recent discovery in the vicinity of Canyon City of several quartz leads, rich in tracings of silver, and great excitement prevailed in consequence

SOCIABLES —The ladies of this city have a very agreeable way of surprising their friends by giving "surprise parties" at different houses, but last evening they favored one of their gentlemen friends, by appearing in full force at his store, armed and equipped with everything necessary to pass off the evening pleasantly We congratulate our bachelor friend on having so many female acquaintances, and as Leap Year brings extra privileges to the ladies, we hope they will improve them, provided his natural diffidence prevents him from taking the lead

THE WEATHER —Our long term of pleasant weather was broken yesterday morning at a very early hour, by the setting in of a rain storm, which lasted at intervals all day In the afternoon, especially, the dark clouds cast their shadows over us, and at evening, old Mount Hood, whose crest has looked like molten silver so often of late, in the glittering rays of the setting sun, was again invisible,

THE steamer Julia, belonging to the O S N Co, will be used from this time as a stock boat, between here and the Cascades She has been expressly fitted up for this business, and will doubtlessly be liberally patronized, at the present prices of cattle east of the mountains. The steamer Iris has been similarly fitted up and forms a connection between the Cascades and the Dalles.

THE steamer Julia did not reach the Cascades on Monday night, with her cargo of but lay at anchor off cottonwood point ght was pitch dark, the wind blew ter and the six hundred feet of stock kept excitement until morning, when they d the Cascades at nine o'clock. She yesterday afternoon without any load of

UP —Charles H. Smith, the colored charged with the larceny from the Office, had an examination before Anderson, and in default of the bail for his appearance before the Circuit was yesterday locked up by Sheriff for safe keeping

TION OF TIME —The merchants of Front street, and others interested in of closing their places of business at hour of the evening, are raising a regarding the time kept by the per who "toots the horn," averring that he regular.

THE CIRCUIT COURT was occupied yesterday the hearing of motions, ordering defaults, other business preliminary to trials, will begin this afternoon at 1 o'clock of R B Wilson vs R. J. Ladd, sheriff is the first in order.

West returned to this city yesterday Hunt in charge of Wells, Fargo & Express, having met Mr. Holland at the des, who returned to the Dalles in consequence of sickness in his family. Only ,000 came through steamer Cowlitz arrived from Monticello St. Helens about 4 o'clock yesterday noon, bringing the Express and Mail, ber with some horses and a full cargo of at, a portion of which was transferred to Julia, at the O. S. N. Co.'s wharf

SALT WORKS will be in operation at the springs, about eighteen miles north of this city, in a short time Workmen are now constructing the buildings there for the purposes needed, and five large boilers will soon be finished at the Iron Works, for the same

SALE DAY —This is one of the days set by A B Richardson for a regular "cry," and we venture to say he he will sell a great many —useful articles, before dinner. He speaks of an extensive sale in his advertisement.

THE Columbia Transportation Company intend to have their new steamer running, above the Cascades, in about six weeks The new boat is 100 feet long, with 18 feet beam, her machinery is from California

THE GRADE on the Public Square has been progressing finely up to night before last, in consequence of the pleasant weather, but the usual "free soil" didn't yield so readily yesterday

THE Wilson G Hunt yesterday took to the Cascades fifty passengers, several head of horses, and 60 tons of freight Returning about forty passengers were on board

CAPT THOMPSON informs us that the stock to the Oregon City Woolen Manufacturing Company, $60,000—is fast being taken, and no doubt it will all be paid in soon

THERE is at present a scientific draftsman in the city, at work on plans for various quartz mills, to be manufactured soon for the Owyhee mines.

A FIRE occurred in the Eureka Exchange, yesterday forenoon, but it was extinguished before much damage was done.

CITY TAXES —The City Collector requests us to say that he will remain in his office during the day for the purpose of receiving taxes from delinquents before proceeding to morrow to levy on property to enforce such payments The question has been decided that the Collector has authority to collect the general and special tax with the additional 5 per cent penalty and to sell the property of delinquents that decision was given by Judge Shattuck, and is sustained by four out of five of the Circuit Court Judges of the State It is not the desire of the Collector to make further cost or expense on any one, but unless payment is made forthwith he will be forced to. Waiting for the decision on the question of legal tender notes has reduced time so that he must bring the matter to a close in order to return his books.

THE THEATRE is becoming a place of more popular attraction now than ever heretofore, in Portland A fine audience greeted the performers last night, to again witness the play of "Court and Stage" As Nell Gwynne Mrs Hayne represented the character perfect, and acted as she always does with the proper spirit Miss Goodrich, sustained her part as well as heretofore, if not better The other characters were well represented To night the Company will make their best effort in the new three act drama of "The Creole Mrs Hayne as the Vivandiere and Miss Goodrich as the Creole It is a thrilling play and one which should be witnessed by every body The three act melodrama of "The Denouncer," will conclude the evening's entertainment

OREGON CITY has contributed more in proportion to her population, in aid of the Sanitary Commission, than any place north of California, the whole amounting to about $3,000 Rev T H Pearne, of this city addressed a good audience there on Monday evening, after which a collection was taken up, amounting to $55 in coin, and $6 in currency, for the Commission

THE Senator arrived at half past three yesterday with her usual cargo—a few passengers and 55 tons of freight

Twilight on Sumter.

BY R. H. STODDARD.

Still and dark along the sea
Sumter lay;
A light was overhead,
As from burning cities shed,
And the clouds were battle-red,
Far away!
Not a solitary gun
Left to tell the fort had won,
Or lost the day!
Nothing but the tattered rag
Of the drooping rebel flag,
And the sea-birds screaming round it in their play!

How it woke one April morn
Fame shall tell;
As from Moultrie, close at hand,
And the batteries on the land,
Round its faint but fearless band
Shot and shell
Raining hid the doubtful light;
But they fought the hopeless fight
Long and well,
(Theirs the glory, ours the shame!)
Till the walls were wrapt in flame,
Then our flag was proudly struck, and Sumter fell!

Now—O look at Sumter now,
In the gloom!
Mark its scarred and shattered walls,
(Hark! the ruined rampart falls!)
There's a justice that appalls
In its doom;
For this blasted spot of earth
Where rebellion had its birth
Is its tomb!
And when Sumter sinks at last
From the heavens, that shrink aghast,
Hell will rise in grim derision, and make room!

. TO BE REDUCED.—A letter from . .hio regiment, dated south of Chat- . .ays:

. .pple brandy appears to be the princi- . here, and sometimes it is found too strong for the inexperienced. A day or two . soldiers who had been trying its . went reeling by our camp, but hap- . .ing to be discovered by General Davis, in passing Headquarters, the following colloquy took place:

"What is your rank, sir?" asked General . .vis of one of the soldiers.

"Quartermaster's Sergeant, 22d Indiana," replied the soldier.

"Then you will henceforth cease to be Quartermaster's Sergeant," said Gen. Davis. Then turning to the other soldier, (an Irishman,) inquired:

"What are you, sir?"

"A private, be G—d!" says Pat, "now case me, and be d—d ty ye."

This answer was so good the General let them both off.

"Union is not always strength," as the sailor said when he saw the purser mixing his rum with water.

Fuller calls it the misery of moderation that the moderate man never has any party to stand by him.

Timothy Titcomb speaks of the broad rolling hills as Mother Earth's bountiful greenbacks.

"A coffin," says an Irishman, "is the house a man lives in when he is dead."

THE BIGGEST LIE OUT.—Does our Western Virginia correspondent really believe the "story" which old "Uncle Gabe" told one night to an "itinerating divine," who was afterwards a chaplain in the United States Senate? Like the good chaplain, we must say we "mightily doubt." But to the story:

"Old Gabe" was especially given to "Tough yarn spinning." On one occasion, while sitting, after supper, before a huge log fire that roared and cracked in the deep throated chimney place, he commenced, as usual, to entertain our clerical friend with a few exploits of his young days. He remarked, "Game is not nigh onto as plenty as it used to be in old times." "No," replied his friend, "I suppose hunters are more numerous." "Not nigh onto as plenty," continued Uncle Gabe, who seemed to be lost for a moment in a reverie: then giving his gray locks a toss and elevating his shaggy eye-brows, "not nigh onto as plenty. When I was a young man in those parts, people had no trouble to get what they wanted in the likes of meats; sometimes they had trouble to raise corn, as the varnel varmints had to be watched to keep them from carrying away the whole field. One day away along in the fall of 18—, I concluded to go out on an' scout an' see of I couldn't bring home a few wild turkeys, as the neighbors said thay was uncommon thick; I hadn't been out afore so I tuk down "Old Bets" an' started towards the Yough (Youghigheny, an' when I come down to the river, I looked on t'other side an' I seed sixteen turkeys settin' side to side, on a limb that hung out over the water. I fired away an' split the limb wide enough to let the turkey's toes in: the ball went through and the crack closed up an' held 'em fast! I loaded an' fired ag'in an' cut the limb off, an' down it fell in the water. I seed the wild honey comin' out by the gallon from where I had cut it off. I started to wade across the river to git the turkeys; an' when I had got about half way over, the fish run in under my trowsers so thick that they burst off a big metal button at the top of it, which flew a hundred yards an' killed a bear.

SURNAMES.—Surnames are by no means fully established in some parts of England. In the colliery districts, particularly, hereditary designations seem to be the exception rather than the rule. A correspondent of Knight's Quarterly Magazine says that clergymen in Staffordshire "have been known to send home a wedding party in despair, after a vain essay to gain from the bride and bridegroom a sound by the way of name." Every man in these colliery fields, it seems, bears a personal soubriquet, descriptive of some peculiarity, but scarcely any person has a family name either known to himself or others.

A story is told of an attorney's clerk who was professionally employed to serve a process on one of these oddly-named persons, whose supposed real name was entered in the instrument with legal accuracy. The clerk, after a great deal of inquiry as to the whereabouts of the party, was about to abandon the search as hopeless, when a young woman who had witnessed his labors, volunteered to assist him.

"Oy, say Bull'ed," she cried to the first person they met, "does thee know a mon neamed Adam Green?"

The bull-head was shaken in token of ignorance. Lie-a-bed could not answer either. Stumpy (a man with a wooden leg,) Cowskin, Spindle-shanks, Cockeye, and Pigtail, were successively consulted, but to no purpose.

At length, having had conversation with several friends, the damsel's eye suddenly brightened, and slapping one of her neighbors on the shoulder, she exclaimed—"Dash my wig! Whoy, he means my feyther!" Then turning to the astonished clerk, she cried—"you shoul'n ax'd for Ole Blackbird!"

So it appeared that the old miner's name, though he was a man of substance, and had legal battle to fight, was not known even to his own daughter.—Cornhill Magazine.

ANECDOTE OF BELMONT, THE BANKER.—Every one in the States has heard of August Belmont, the wealthy banker and capitalist, of New York. Here is a characteristic anecdote which is related of him: It is well known that Mr. B. is of a nature highly irascible, and that, when irritated, he does not scruple to employ terms which are more vivid than proper—in fine, that he swears occasionally, in a manner calculated to impress the hearer with unclerical ideas. On one occasion, so the story runs, Mr. B. engaged a new clerk, a quiet, dignified man, who immediately succeeded in exciting his employer's ire, and received a large assortment of slight profanities in return. The clerk bore this quietly for some days; but at length, having received more than his fair allowance of denunciation, he got down from his stool, closed his books, and declared that he would no longer submit to this vituperation. Mr. B. seemed dumbfounded by such active rebellion; but recovering from his discomposure, asked with a slight imprecation, how much his offended clerk would require for the privilege of being swore at in his employer's discretion. The answer was, "Double my present salary." "You shall have it!" cried he and immediately opened upon him a fusilade of denunciations better to be imagined than described.

A man's own conscience is his sole tribunal, and he should care no more for that phantom "opinion" than he should fear meeting a ghost if he crossed the church yard at dark.
